

RUSH

TERMS OF USE

INDEX

- 03 GENERAL CONDITIONS
- 04 ABOUT RUSH
- 05 REGISTRATION
- 05 ABOUT USERNAMES AND PASSWORDS
- 06 DATA STORAGE
- 06 USE RESTRICTION
- 07 TERM
- 07 ADDITIONAL DECLARATIONS
- 08 FINAL CONSIDERATIONS

GENERAL CONDITIONS

The following terms and conditions correspond to the collection of basic rules applied to the use of the RUSH platform in general. It is extremely important for RUSH users to carefully read each of the topics described in this document before registering on the website.

We ask you, user, to carefully read each of the conditions below, analyzing every proposition, and clearly understand its meaning before having access to the registration within our platform.

It is extremely important that the user agrees with each term and condition herein. In case there is any type of divergence of ideas and the user does not agree to this document, he/she will, unfortunately, be prevented from registering and using the services and benefits from RUSH. Entering the platform will be interpreted as if the user agrees to all the terms of use and conditions described below.

These terms might occasionally be updated; aiming for better usage conditions both for our clients and for the platform. RUSH is not responsible for previously noticing users about these updates; however, the indication of the date of its last update will be available on the cover of our Terms of Use. The continuous use of the platform will mean the confirmation of agreement with the new updates, and the user is responsible for always paying attention to the Terms of Use. In case the user does not agree to a new change, he/she can cancel the account.

ABOUT RUSH

Rush is a different project, created with the intention of connecting technology to reality. It uses Ethereum's protocol, one of the most popular ones in the world, known for being extremely secure, in addition to offering a strong liquidity in the cryptocurrency market. Through this protocol, clear and auditable transferences are carried; as well as the support provided by the aggregate quarries attached to the project.

Rush is an ERC-20 token backed by aggregate quarries. With this, the currency ends up assuring a stability that is not common among cryptocurrencies. While other assets have interferences in their price because of market volatility, Rush has a fixed solidity, for being backed up.

Rush is also a mintable token, which means that it is an ERC-20 with the additional resource of allowing new tokens to be created at any moment and added to the currency's max supply, while the supply of other ERC-20 tokens is fixed. This function opens up a range of very promising possibilities for Rush tokens.

Rush also provides within its system a customized Wallet, the RUSH WALLET, for users to safely store their tokens. You also have the option of storing your currencies on another reliable platform of your preference.

Rush tokens are accepted at different exchanges where you can trade your assets, and your total supply is 500,000,000 Rush tokens. Its official acronym within Etherscan is RUC.

The Rush token has a fixed and unchangeable value, even if the value of its backup changes! This means that if you have purchased 1 RUC token which was equivalent to 1 specific aggregate, even if the value of this aggregate rises, your currency will still be worth the same. In other words: you have the possibility of having a currency worth more in the future than what it used to be worth when you bought it!

REGISTRATION

Every individual or legal entity can fully register on our system. RUSH does not make any type of acceptance of people, the only requirement is that its use should be for adults over 18 years old that have control over their financial.

ABOUT USERNAMES AND PASSWORDS

To register on the RUSH platform, just inform your full name, email, create a login and password. To each new access performed, the user must insert his/her email and password for validation. All the personal information provided by the user are particular and non-transferable. The user is solely responsible for assuring the secrecy and safety of his/her login and password, avoiding the improper and unauthorized use of his/her registration.

The initial insertion of your email and password gives you access to any of the activities within the RUSH system. Users are aware that he/she is solely responsible for the activities performed on RUSH's backoffice.

In case of suspicion of improper access by unauthorized people to your account, login or password, or another activity not recognized by you, the procedure must be:

- Immediately requesting the change of your password;
- Informing the RUSH platform, so that we can take the proper action in time.

If any type of fraud or hacking or any kind of improper use is proven, RUSH reserves the right to block the account immediately. The user will be notified that his/her account is blocked via email. This measure will only happen in situations of misuse, as a conduct that aims to safeguard the security and protection of user data. RUSH is not responsible for occasional damages that may result from the user being unable to access the account within this period.

DATA STORAGE

By agreeing with this Terms of Use, the user affirms being aware that RUSH reserves the right of storing his/her data for better working with the system and registrations within the platform.

USE RESTRICTION

Any type of change or conversion of information or features within our platform is strictly prohibited, as well as executing any type of derivation or analysis of the project with the intention of creating a product or similar rival service; or even any operation that has characteristics, features or ideas similar to RUSH's.

Specific actions prohibited for users:

- a) Any actions that go against morals and best practices;
 - b) Taking the identity/personality of another person, either individual or a legal entity;
 - c) Making available, no matter how, any type of content that violates third-parties' right;
 - d) Unraveling, disclosing, transmitting, exhibiting or sending any type of unrequested or unauthorized announcement made by the platform, propaganda or promotional material; as well as unrequested messages or messages of mass dissemination (spam, for example);
 - e) Publishing, loading, exhibiting, transmitting or sending any type of content with viruses or another code, file or computer program that has the goal of stopping, limiting or even destroying the features of our software, hardware or equipment in general;
 - f) Acting aggressively, embarrassing, coercing or threatening another user;
 - g) Going beyond the privacy and secrecy rights of other users of the platform, violating their safety;
 - h) Making any type of compromising action that might, directly or indirectly, harm RUSH as a whole or in part.
-

TERM

The Terms of Use herein do not have a settled term date; being in effect until further notice. RUSH reserved the right to change any of the articles present in this document without previous notifications. We reinforce that it is the user's interest to constantly pay attention to the changes within the platform.

No type of mandate relationship, society/association, employee attachment, representation, consortium, or solidary responsibility is established between RUSH and users; either grants power to both parties to represent each other on legal businesses. The relationship established between RUSH and the user is exclusively for the goals and effects of this Terms of Use.

ADDITIONAL DECLARATIONS

RUSH is fully waived of responsibility in the following circumstances:

- Issues on the user's internet or internal network;
- Integration or compatibility of our system with other systems, third-party or user software;
- In case of major force defined by civil law;
- Improper use by the user that presents a danger to the platform.

FINAL CONSIDERATIONS

In case there is any change or termination made by RUSH regarding the information of this Terms of Use and Conditions, it will not be taken as justification for renunciation or changes on the users' responsibilities.

The full or partial invalidation of any of the Terms herein will not affect the obligations of other items presented in this document.

The obligations and rights described in these Terms of Use might be given or transferred for RUSH's third-parties, through a previous notification of a month (30 days) that will be sent to the email attached to the user's account on the platform, in case he/she does not agree to a topic, the user can request the account cancelation.

At last, the user confirms reading, understanding, and accepting every condition mentioned above.

This Terms of Use is effective after September 22th, 2020. Copyright © 2020 RUSH. All rights reserved.

RUSH

The perfect union between technology and reality

